Federated IT on the winning team for 10-year, $50 billion GSA Alliant Contract

WASHINGTON DC (September 1, 2007) – Federated Information Technologies (Federated IT), Inc., an established Information Technology professional services provider to the Intelligence Community and Department of Defense, will provide its Information Technology (IT) and Information Assurance (IA) services over the next decade as part of a team awarded the General Services Administration's (GSA) largest government-wide acquisition contract—GSA Alliant. As a result of this 10-year, $50 billion Indefinite Delivery Indefinite Quantity Government-Wide Acquisition Contract (IDIQ GWAC), government agencies and military services will be able to purchase world-class IT solutions from some of the industry's best providers, including Federated IT.

Federated has partnered with QinetiQ, one of approximately 30 prime contractors for the project; a leading provider of information technology and engineering solutions to the U.S. government. Federated was among the nationally known IT and professional services industry leaders, along with other 8(a), small disadvantaged businesses, woman-owned, and veteran/disabled veteran-owned firms who, helped to secure this valuable opportunity to define the future of the Alliant contract.

"We are excited about the future of the Alliant vehicle and about the opportunity to deliver superior information technology services throughout the federal government," said Matthew Bucholz, President of Federated IT.
